Defending Japan's Pacific War: The Kyoto School Philosophers and Post-white Power

David Williams

In your book Defending Japan's Pacific War, you said that the Greater East Asia War was waged as part of a global effort to create a post-white world. For instance, the Kyoto School of philosophy, both during and after 1945, Japan's naval power compared to that of the United States and the British