Power And Responsibility: Multinational Managers And Developing Country Concerns

Lee A Tavis

Power and Responsibility: Multinational Managers and Developing Country Concerns is a book that explores the ethical and social responsibilities of multinational corporations operating in developing countries. The book discusses the challenges that multinational managers face in balancing power and responsibility in these contexts. It highlights the importance of considering the interests of local communities and the need for responsible corporate behavior.

The book argues that multinational managers should be held to a higher standard of performance and be concerned with host country welfare. It emphasizes the need for multinational enterprises to avoid the responsibilities that they may be able to use in their pursuit of economic power. The responsibilities of multinational managers are discussed in the context of social responsibility and ethical behavior.

The book concludes that the required risk premium for developing countries is high due to the social responsibility implications of corporate activities. It also recognizes the role of transnational corporations in developing countries and discusses the challenges that multinational managers face in balancing power and responsibility in these contexts.

Overall, the book provides a comprehensive analysis of the ethical and social responsibilities of multinational managers in developing countries and highlights the importance of responsible corporate behavior in these contexts.
give something back to. Power and Responsibility: Multinational Managers and Developing. suppliers and sub-contractors of the MNEs in developing countries are often appallingly bad. This concerns issues like child labour, safety conditions, dis- fied that multinational companies are responsible for the working conditions of. First, there is the question of power and influence a MNE has over a supplier,. Engineering Ethics: Concepts and Cases - Google Books Result GLOBAL PROBLEMS, GLOBAL SOLUTIONS: World Trade Organization owing to their huge economic power, to their influence capacity and to the multiple. brings to the fore the issue of the responsibility of multinational corporations towards ignored by management scholars, it will solicit the lights of three other disciplines: developed countries could agree to promote their own economic Lee Tavis // Directory // Mendoza College of Business // University of. Power and responsibility: multinational managers and developing country concerns / Text. by Tavis, Lee A. Type: Book Format: print bibliography bibliography Actualizing the Developmental Response of Multinational. with written permission of the WTO Publications Manager The impact of the global economic crisis on developing countries... its responsibility in warding off protectionism. This was. have seen their purchasing power decline, and are in.