
The existing design environment is based on the CCITT Specification and Description Language SDL. To be able to perform verifications effectively, Telecommunications Systems Engineering Using SDL explains the use of SDL in the design and development of telecommunications systems. SDL provides a formal and precise description of systems, which is essential for verifying their behavior.

Telecommunications Systems Engineering Using SDL

Roberto Saracco Jared R Smith Rick Reed